The California State Water Resources Control Board has established nine water resources control regions in the State. The Central Coast Region 3 comprises 7.2% (11,500 square miles (29,800 square kilometers)) of the State of California. The predominant land cover of the region is natural grassland, shrub, mixed forest, and woodlands.